Subject: Re: 341 Appearance?

Very helpful. Do you have thoughts on 8? I "think" shads position and confirmation motivated bankruptcy -to avoid trade payables, employees and shareholders from getting screwed.

Is that relevant in contact that under Shads alleged foreclosure a lot of people other than shareholders are getting nothing. Is that relevant?

We can discuss in more detail on Monday at the prep session, but see the answers below in red.

Marty-

On an internal call we had we came up with the below questions in reference to the 341 meeting:

ATTORNEY CLIENT PRIVILEGE

Questions for Dilworth

1. Will we have an opening statement? No, it is a Q and A between Bud and the trustee. The first question, though, might be "why did you file?"
2. What is the role of the Trustee? She will go through the schedules and SOFA and ask questions about the information contained in it. It is typically not a game of gotcha as much as it is to be sure everything is answered completely. If it is incomplete, we can amend. After she is done, she will open it up for questions by creditors for Bud. She will also moderate when it becomes time for Q and A from creditors.
3. How long do we think the 341 meeting last? 1 hour. It can be shorter if
4. Can creditors ask questions about the plan? yes
5. Can we contact creditors and suggest answers consistent with our positions? I don't know why you would want to do that.
6. To what extent can we provide background to creditors? same
7. What is the scope of the 341 meeting? Typically the schedules and statements and what are your intentions for getting out of bankruptcy.
8. Shad's foreclosure and email to us that no liabilities are going to be honored by him and newco.
9. Is secured creditors like Shad or his attorney allowed to ask questions? Yes but they are typically not allowed to ask a lot.
10. Is Shad or his attorney allowed to correct answers of Bud? It depends on whether the UST allows them. This one might.
11. Can employees ask questions? If they are creditors

Hi Marty,

130pm ET Monday is fine. I have copies of the SOFA and all schedules, but I must admit I have had only cursory review as they were being prepared. I assume I'll need to thoroughly digest them? Correct

How long do you think we'll need on Monday, and who from your side will be there? Just you? Anne or Larry? I'll have Amanda send a Zoom link. Just me

Best regards,

Bud Robertson

Would 1:30 ET on Monday work for you? Also, do you have a copy of the schedules and statements of affairs?

Thanks, Marty. Mornings are usually pretty packed for me, but any time after noon ET Monday or Tuesday should be fine. Perhaps Monday in case we decide additional prep/research is recommended?

Let me know what works for you and I'll accommodate.

The plan is still to have you testify.

Hi Marty,

A while ago you said you might want me to appear at the 341 hearing next Wednesday. What is your current thinking?

Would be good to have some time to prepare. Thanks.
